VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Please consider volunteering some of your talents for the parish. We need help on the Events Committee, CAM, Taking Photos at Church Events. We also need Help around the Church (including snow shoveling, altar linens, watering flowers, etc. etc.) and other Odd Jobs as needed. No job is too small. Even changing a light bulb would help! Please contact the Rectory if you can volunteer.

Octoberfest CAM

after 4:30 Mass

Saturday, October 20

My dear Parishioners,

There is a wonderful children's story by Hans Christian Anderson, the moral of which serves more than children. In "The Emperor's New Clothes," a vain emperor is convinced by his tailor that the new clothes the tailor had designed for the emperor were the most unique garments ever made. We know the story well enough to remember that there were no clothes. The tailor had managed to speak to the emperor's vanity and convince him that only a truly great person could see the clothes.

The emperor was so vain he had to pretend that he could see the clothes although he could not, and no one dared to tell the emperor the truth, that he was actually naked. Everyone feared the emperor. Telling the truth was out of the question. Except, as the vain emperor paraded through the town to display his wonderful new garments, a child too young to understand the fear simply saw the truth as it was and loudly proclaimed it.

Last Sunday we heard Jesus prepare the Apostles for their last journey to Jerusalem, where Jesus would die. On the journey, the Apostles now are arguing over their personal greatness. When Jesus asks what they are discussing, shame kept them silent. The Apostles were looking for a powerful nation that they thought would be built through Jesus' action and power. They counted themselves lucky to be in the inner circle that would probably rule.

Jesus issues a warning with the example of a child. A child can give nothing to us nor do anything for us. Instead, we must serve a child's needs without hope of return. We must protect a child with our own lives and livelihood. Our time must be surrendered for the sake of a child. We are not to seek relationships with power or with people for the sole reason that they might be able to do something for us. Our Christian duty is to seek to be with the weak and the vulnerable—those who need help, not those who can do something for us.

A person who makes a connection between serving others and happiness—the connection that Jesus hopes we all will make—is a person who is joyful and spiritually fulfilled.

Sincerely,

Father Ed

Children's Corner

As we did last year, we are gathering all children together after the 11:00 a/m. Mass for a short hands on lesson on how much Jesus loves them. The specific theme will follow the Sunday Gospel message.

We will begin our Children's Corner today, September 16.

We ask that you bring your children to the room adjoining the chapel. The plan is to offer this faith formation every week.

Because feeding the stomach is as important as feeding the soul, we are offering a Children's CAM at the same time. Children can bring their snack to the table.

We hope that we see you there and if you have any questions, please call Maryellen at 267-210-1258.
