My dear Parishioners,

Hospitality was very important in the biblical world when there were no motels or restaurants along the highway. Travelers were dependent on the hospitality of strangers for their very survival. In today's first reading, Abraham and Sarah welcomed three men and were promised a son, despite their advanced ages. The first words of the reading tell us it is God who visits and promises.

The good news is that today's gospel, offers us two lessons: first, how easy it is to get thrown off kilter and second a prescription for what is essential to leading a life that is properly focused and on the right track. When Jesus enters the village where Martha and her sister Mary lived, Martha welcomed him and proceeded to wait on him seemingly wanting to offer him the best hospitality she could. All the while, her sister Mary sat at the feet of Jesus and listened to him speak. Martha then complained and asked Jesus to tell her sister to get up and do her part in the duties of offering hospitality to a guest.

From the context of the reading, it seems the response of Jesus to Martha was aimed at helping her recognize exactly who was in her midst, the long-awaited and promised messiah, and what she needed to do to receive salvation. She needed, like her sister, to take a break from the hustle and bustle of her expected routine and sit at the feet of Jesus, listen, and allow her life and heart to be changed. Similarly, it is more important than ever amidst the fast pace and many distractions of modern life to take a break and sit at the feet of Jesus and listen.

In today's readings, Abraham, Mary and Martha open their hearts and great blessings come to them. Do we open our hearts to strangers and visitors, especially those in need?

Sincerely,

Father Ed
